

Phoenix Conversions — June 2026 Digital Advertising Summary

Reporting period: June 1 – June 30, 2026

Where June Lands

June is the middle of peak truck season in East Tennessee — warm-weather projects are in full swing and both consumer upgrades and commercial outfitting run hard through the summer. Worth noting up front: June has 30 days versus May's 31, so any number that held roughly flat actually did slightly more work per day.

June by the Numbers (vs. May)

- Phone calls from ads (ad button): 97 (up from 84 — a 15% increase)
- Phone calls from the website by ad visitors: 150 (up from 130)
- Direction taps from ads: 27 (up from 18 — a 50% jump)
- All-source website phone calls: 441 (up from 382)
- Visitors who arrived from an ad: 1,635 (vs. 1,707)
- Total website visitors: 3,308 (vs. 3,364)

What Stood Out

Calls came back strong. After a slightly quieter May, the phones picked back up: ad-button calls and website calls from ad visitors both rose 15%, and direction taps — people asking their maps app how to get to you — jumped 50%. That's the kind of real-world intent signal that tends to lead to walk-ins.

Vehicle Customizations stayed the engine. It generated 60 of the ad-button calls, led by the "Truck Customization" ad group (28 calls) and "Truck Custom Shop" (20). Bed Cover kept up its strong habit of turning clicks into calls — 16 calls from 122 clicks.

Traffic dipped a touch, and that's fine. Ad-driven visitors eased about 4% and total visitors held nearly flat. With calls up across the board over the same stretch, this reads as a normal month-to-month shuffle in the traffic mix, not a change in demand — the people who came through were more likely to pick up the phone.

The Campaign Picture

Paid Search (Google). 15,031 impressions — the number of times your ads were shown — and 1,264 clicks, with the ads landing in a top spot about 81% of the time. Vehicle Customizations and Bed Cover again did the conversion heavy lifting. Truck Accessories added 13 calls on the month.

Google Display. 289,570 banner impressions and 1,369 clicks. Think of these as digital billboards keeping Phoenix in front of people as they browse other sites — a wide top-of-funnel that feeds the phone and chat activity.

Meta (Facebook & Instagram). Ran a leaner, consumer-focused footprint in June — 87,122 impressions and 75 clicks.

One note on time-on-site. Average engagement time per visit came down this month, and that lines up with some recent website housekeeping rather than any drop in interest: the link to the discontinued online store was removed and a few retired brand pages were taken down. With fewer side pages to click into, visits run a little more direct — even as calls, direction taps, and chats all rose.

Audience & Top Markets

The audience stayed strongly male (about 84%) and concentrated in the core 55–64 truck-owning bracket (39%). Knoxville led by a wide margin (560 ad clicks), followed by Sevierville (181), Maryville (90), Crossville (87), Pittman Center (81), and Morristown (61).

The Non-Paid Side

Organic search brought 804 visitors who averaged well over a minute on the site — the most engaged audience of any source. Direct visitors added 621. The non-paid side of the house stayed healthy and independent of the ad spend.

Heading Into Summer

June did the important thing: it turned steady traffic into more calls, taps, and chats than May did. With peak customization season carrying through July and August, the setup is there for that contact momentum to keep building.
